Kindly share with us your brand details in brief and major recent recognized projects.

Our brand Elysium Abodes is derived from an ancient Greek mythology where 'Elysium' was reserved as a place for heroes to whom Gods had granted immortality. The name not only suggests grandeur, but also rings a bell with royalty. The company's positioning reinforces the key offering which is an experience that's truly out of the world.

Our philosophy is 'A design is as good as it is built.' Execution is our forte, and we try to reflect the client's persona in every home we build. We strive to uplift the lifestyle of our clients in every possible way.

One of our prestigious projects has been a French Classical villa in the small town of Byadgi in Karnataka. One of the main challenges in this project was lack of availability of materials locally. The Villa comprises of 7 bedrooms with ensuite bathrooms, Den & home theatre room, Library, Spa, Salon & outdoor areas like Patio, Gardens & Recreation Terraces.

One of our other prestigious projects in the recent times has been a 30,000 sq. ft Moroccan house in Chennai, which sits atop at the height of 4 mtrs from the road level. The house comprises of a Main House, Gym & Spa Block, Guest Block with 2 bedrooms and a Living Room, Home Theatre Room, Outdoor areas like patios, terraces & gardens. Being a villa on the beach in Southern India, the Villa has been designed keeping Tsunami and its adverse conditions in mind.

Tell us the challenges you often face while designing projects and as a main designer of the industry, in terms of excelling constantly in comparison to your previous works and emerging as both competitive and creatively satisfied.

'A design is as good or bad as its brief'. We firmly believe that after brainstorming and discussions we must ensure that we get the correct brief from the client. This is ideally the start point and the essence of the project and the designing evolves around it. Too many changes in the brief can be a tedious task, as it requires disconnecting from the previous line of thought and restarting the thinking process. With easy access to designs and references, homeowners tend to think out of the box and this widens the client's perspective, which is good. However, the challenge is the adaptability of a particular design and its form with the resources, available space & site conditions. Finding a reference image and getting a contractor to execute it for you is simpler said than done. With technologically advanced tools available, it is possible to draw up 3D perspectives to give a look and feel of their space to the homeowner.

Share your prediction to be picked and followed for the projects to be designed and the ones that artists will follow in designing for the current year – 2018.

Themed spaces are trending in a big way presently. This extends the need for curating of spaces and accessorizing it with the most sought after artifacts & decorative pieces. Today metro cities in India provide access to some of the most exclusive to the affordable range of products and merchandise available. Also, today an Indian homeowner is susceptible to changes due to his extensive travels & the world coming closer than ever before. Hence, we need to ensure that we leave enough room for customization and shuffling of furniture to get a fresh look whenever desired by the homeowner.

Technology is at its best in recent times and the modern Indian is tech-savvy. As Designers & Home Builders, it is our responsibility to help conserve the limited resources like Water & electricity, which are the two most, needed & misused items in a household. We must incorporate natural lighting, efficient lighting systems, and water saving bathroom fittings in the Smart homes of tomorrow.
